

European Regional Information Society Association Annual Conference, Cáceres, Spain

Event date:2009-05-06

The European Regional Information Society Association (eris@) has scheduled its annual conference for 2009 from 6 to 8 May in Cáceres, Spain.

This edition of the event will revolve around the key themes of innovation and creativity from the perspectives of methods, technologies and projects.

After the opening and a conference dinner on the first day, the second day will consist of presentations and roundtables on issues related not only to information and communication technology (ICT) methods such as open innovation, living labs and clusters, but also the latest technological devices, including radio frequency identification (RFID), web 2.0 and broadband. On the final day, the main session will be dedicated to ICT services for people, with a special emphasis on e-inclusion, women, the young and the elderly.

The organizers are making a big effort to provide a high profile agenda, catering and social activities without charging any fee. If, after having registered you cannot attend the event, please advise the organisers.

The event will be taking place at the Cultural Center San Francisco. There is some transportation to Cáceres and the venue, by shuttle bus services from Badajoz and Madrid airports on the 6th and on the 9th of May. Details are given on the website. Register for your free trial on www.eufunds4u.com and click on the link Cordis Events. You can then access full information pertaining to registration, exhibitors, speakers and full programme.
